Bowden also has a gift and natural ability to weave the many other smaller, but no less important, stories of the men, the evolving game, and all the technological shifts that helped make Football the game that it is today. Like his previous effort Black Hawk Down, Bowden pulls together a number of different but related threads and weaves a cliffhanger. Where if you were a black player, playing for the Baltimore 1958, you had to play in a city that was segregated.
