No killing innocent bystanders. Why are these people fighting this war? At first I thought maybe it was because it was from an assassin's point of view, but I've read other books with that point of view.

I'm so glad I didn't let them deter me. The War is ageless, hidden in the shadows. But I think there is a more primitive connection than that - it's gang violence and organized crime on a whole new level. Their romance happens quickly. I look forward to reading his future work.

Unfortunately their romance comes with serious consequences. Why do perfect that's probably what was missing from this, in my own opinion.
