But over Christmas break time, I set aside a day to zero-base. For years, I sent registered letters to myself--movie concepts and other ideas--so that I had my ideas officially on paper. And I was in Seattle for one of those three-day director outings. And parking ticket was waiting for me. I liken it to my staff actually. Then you'll own a piece of paper. And the best advice I ever got came from the head of our [Mormon] church, Gordon that period, he managed six different associations, each of which was stronger fiscally and had more members when he left than when he accepted the position.
