In this lesson, you will learn how independent agencies and government corporations assist in providing services and regulations. This page was last edited on 13 September at State-owned enterprises of Australia. Archived from the original on 17 April. The government has tried to avoid having agencies doing commercial activities, by separating out areas that compete with private companies into government-owned companies, for example within road construction. Henceforth, however, the audit is to be conducted by the corporation's inspector general "or by an independent external auditor, as determined by the inspector general or, if there is no inspector general, the head of Federal Government Corporations: An Overview corporation," according to accepted government auditing standards. There are a number of different corporate forms which result in a mixture of public and private capital.
