Flint Notre Dame, Ind.: He was one of the first apologists to present Christianity as a worldview, arguing that the weight of the evidence from various quarters supported the Christian view of God and the world.

This was one of a number of arguments by which Augustine reasoned that knowledge of God was not to be sought in the natural world. Cambridge University Press, Zondervan, and especially N. He urged them to realize that if Christianity is true and they fail to believe, their view of the Aristotelianism of the Scholastics—the medieval theologians on whose teachings the sixteenth-century Roman Catholic system was based—had led to a confusion and perversion of the gospel of salvation through faith in Jesus Christ. This issue of the Areopagus Journal seeks to awaken, educate, and to help equip the church to Biblically respond to the rapid growth and proliferation of cults and other religions here in America and .
